PRESS RELEASE

Montreal: There is great news for the occupational therapy program, from McGill's School of Physical and Occupational Therapy. The Director of the School, Dr Annette Majnemer is pleased to introduce 3 new tenure track faculty members at McGill's School of Physical and Occupational Therapy who were appointed recently. Dana ANABY is originally from Israel; she studied at Tel Aviv University, and then the University of British Columbia, following up with a post-doctorate from McMaster University. Her areas of research interest include activities of daily living, participation and well-being across the lifespan with a special focus on children and youth with physical disabilities and their families. Patricia BELCHIOR is from Brasil, and studied there and also at the University of Florida. Her research interests center around cognitive rehabilitation in the elderly. Hailing from the USA, Melissa PARK trained at Yale University and the University of Southern California. Most recently she completed a post-doc at Karolinska Institute, Sweden, where her main area of interest lies with transformational processes (eg. knowledge translation) and outcomes focus on participation and social inclusion.
